

An Introduction to Strategies for Teaching in Clinical Settings

Orientation Objectives

By the end of the orientation participants will be able to...

- Describe what it means to be a good teacher or engage in good teaching
- Apply a systematic approach to teaching in clinical settings
- Apply a reflective approach to giving constructive feedback
- Describe their commitment to good teaching practice at the UA CoM

Interactive Format

- There is always a big group of incoming interns and fellows - about 200!
- We use a small group interactive approach.
- Each group of 7-8 interns applies the teaching and feedback strategies to clinical teaching scenarios and shares their insights and ideas.
- Facilitators promote discussion and questions.
- We use Poll Everywhere to ask interns/fellows to tell us what is essential for good teaching and how they will contribute to good teaching of medical students.

Contact

Karen Spear Ellinwood, PhD, JD, EdS
Director, Faculty Instructional Development Curricular Affairs
kse@medadmin.arizona.edu